

Hockey

Canada's national winter sport and most Canadians feel the same way about hockey as the British do about football. It is thought the first game was played in Montreal back in the 1870s, the pinnacle is winning the Stanley Cup.

Canadian Moose

While many people travel to Canada to see bears, the moose is Canada's most famous animal and one of its most iconic symbols. The moose is found in a number of Canadian provinces in vast numbers, most especially Newfoundland and Ontario.

Maple Syrup

About 80% of the world's maple syrup is produced in Canada, with Quebec being the largest producer due to its abundance of maple trees. 'Sugaring' is the term to collect and reduce the sap from the trees to produce the syrup, a process first discovered by Canada's indigenous people.
